WHAT GIVE THE SURVEYS THEIR IM-PETUS-WHAT THEY HAVE ACCOM-PLISHED-SENATOR LOGAN'S WORK

The following article appeared in the Washington Critic, of January 10th, which pays a high tribute to the ability and wisdom of Hon. John A. Logan, United States Senator from Illinois. General Logan has taken rank among American statesmen, as an important actor in the politics of this country. He is a logical reasoner, shrewd debater, and among the hardest worked of all public men for the benefit of the whole country. He takes broad and liberal views on all important national measures which are brought before congress, and is always found zealously battling for that which he conceives to be just and proper for the whole country:

"When the name of a public man becomes conspicuous, his acts and character are the legitimate objects of either praise or condemuation. It is not generally supposed that Gen. John A. Jo gan is a devotee at the shrine of sci ence, 'yet he is a liberal reader and thinker, and a man of great practical wisdom. It is a curious fact that scientists, theorists, philosophers and bookworms are always preceded in practical discoveries by unlettered students in science and close observers of nature's laws. Gen. Logan's home was at Car bondale, in the centre of the great coal belt of southern Illinois. As a student of nature's laws ne studied the geolog and results are especially valued in Europe. Mr, Edward Hull, director of the geological survey of Ireland, says in an official paper that the 'surveys made under the auspices of the United States government reflect infinite credit upon the intelligence of American law-givers.' Lieut-General Richard Strachey, of the Royal British Engineers, London, England, writes: 'The work of the surveyors is most honorable to the United States government and to the men of science his arm, and the bullet striking it, set out to show their deluded fellow broke the bone and glancing upward citizens the evil of their way, and with dassed through Gay's hat. Evasion Not Possible.

In December the tariff divided the Democrats into two parties. In January it makes three parties of themand the session is not yet near its end. The Carlisle men were understood to favor "a thorough overhauling of the tariff," because of its alleged "abombinations." The Randall men were op posed to such overhauling until after the Presidential election. But now we have a third party, which, perceiving that the party will stultify itself if it refuses to amend what it declares "abominable," and trusting that the voters will not have sense enough to distincivil bill in the fortieth congress; the guish a mere dodge from a radical change, proposes to make a horizontal reduction of a certain per cent on all duties and they to boast that the party has "roformed the tariff."

But, men and brethren, this is not a good year for dodges. Dull business and scauty employment sharpen the minds of voters. Probably there never was deeper interest in the tariff questing or imaging the magnitude of the tion than now, and the millions who great work he inaugurated through his live by wages comprehend the matter well from a Saturday-night point of view. Protection, the millions see, stimulates production; induces more people to put brains and money into manufactures. That, the millions say, insures better wages. If that system is to be abandoned or chauged, the milxtending lion vant to know why. The Democrats have been saving "Because the infamous system robs everybody else for and from the British possesions to the the benefit of those engaged in the protected manufactures." Now the millions reply "If you really believe that. you will repeal the duties which favor certain industries, and will do so at your logical studies. A knowledge of the peril if disaster comes. If you do not history and peculiarities of the differ- believe it, and so do not repeal such duties, you have been lying to us, and dethe world's history have occupied this serve no confidence." To get rid of the dilemma, the Democratic dolt proposes to leave the discriminations relatively as they are, but to cut down all duties alike. And he really fancies that the millions will not detect the fraud.

> It was the discrimination which the Democrats denounced as robbery. A thousand times they have said "If the tariff were so arranged that every body would be benefitted just as much as he was burdened, nobody would be hurt Tuesday in January, 1885. by it, and nobody would want it."

It simply shows, however, how insolent these reformers are. Heretofore they have confined their efforts to proving that protection is a monumental evil, but failing in that, they now turn about and propose to show up the free trader, and, if they fail at that, will doubtless set forth to demonstrate that of all the crying abuses of the times the most crying is "revenue reform." The reformers will have something to say if they prove themselves fools in doing it.—N. Y. Commercial Advertiser.

THE REAL ISSUE IN 1884.

The real issue in the coming presidential campaign is not, it seems to us, so particularly what shall be the policy not to be slighted or lightly dealt with. But they are essentially peace issues, and it is only after security of life, liberty and the privileges of citizenship have been permanently secured and irrevocably fastened upon the country, so that every citizen, no matter what his color, or where his residence in the United States, can enjoy without hindrance, coercion or intimidation, all the privileges of cititory and fair fame, and for the buildzens under the law, that economic questions should monopolize the attention of a people. A great party having on southern soil. at heart the welfare of a country for which it proposes to legislate, follows or should follow a frule not essentially different from that practiced by an ordinarily prudent man in the conduct of his own affairs. Think of a man studying the price of raw material on his death bed, or calculating the pros ballot as some of his neighbors desire. No, indeed; his first work is to secure the lives of himself and family from that he has at hand the summary process of effective laws to protect him and secure him his rights under the law. When he is assured of all these, great party differ from that of an individual. He is only one, it is true; they legislate for a collection of those indiconduct would not only be the same. but stronger in degree in proportion to the happiners and security of the countless numbers of citizens depend. ent upon the policy and conduct of that party for necessary protection under the law. We think, then, that the real issue of 1884 as the South question, because it affects life and the rights of citizenship. It is only after to show, that other questions should monopolize consideration. Not that we would mean to drop the advocacy of protection for American industries Not by any means. It is very proper that it should go along with the other aims of the Republican party. But the great question of the protection of life and the freedom of the ballot in the southern states should, first of all, engage the attention and exercise the immense energies of the Republican party. We cannot shut our eyes to the fact, and it is useless to say that race conflicts and sectional strife are over. Bourbon papers may try to lull the Republican party of the north to sleep with the assertion that all are accorded their rights, under the law, in the south. It is false. And the Republican party should not find it out too late. As long as the gaping and bleeding wounds of the Danville riot and the Yazoo slaughter, and these only a few weeks ago, not to speak of tne Hamburg massacre some years ago, remain open, showing the heartless slaughter of scores of helpless colored citizens, the Republican party must not think their mission for the emancipation of the colored race successfully terminated. In fact it would be hardly begun unless these citizens could be secured and protected in the exercise of their rights under the law. Frequent and glaring illustrations show that this is not the case. The emancipation of the colored people deprived them of the protection which their being valuable chattels threw around them, and placed them as a class, by reason of their voting with the Republican party, in an attitude of helpless hostility to the bourbon element of the south. To abandon them to the mercy of shot guns, that bourbon annihilator of majorities, would be to contribute to their gradual wiping out. And a worse state of the country can scarcely be imagined than that would be where if perchance the Democratic party should be successful in a voter in the south? The exercise of his right of voting according to the dictates os his own conscience might cost him his life. In this assertion we are borne out by the facts. The New sensible, straightforward, anti-protec- well man.

tion paper, contained a few days ago an interview of its own correspondent with one of the leading boarbons in the locality of the Yazoo slaughter, in which the latter stated that the colored people might live there and work, but that they must not attempt to exercise any political privileges. The Democracy once in power, with a solid south to back them, would require only a few votes from the north, which a judicious dispensing of the immense patronage of the government might easily gain for them, and it would be almost impossible to defeat them hereafter. In of the country upon the tariff or any the meantime, what would become of other great economic question. These the colored voter? We shudder to it. are entitled to their place in the con- answer. The real question then for sideration of a great people and ought the country is. shall four millions of their enemies. If they shall not, then the north must sustain the party that will protect them and give them that security of life and rights under the law without which their emancipation is fonly the forerunner of their total ebliteration. And the Republican party must bend its energies to meet this great demand upon them, in the

There is one man we never hear of now. In fact he seems to be entirely neglected. We insist that this is wrong and that he ought to have a chance. We wonder if Mr. Morgan has studied the census of 1830, showing the remarkable growth of the United States and the increase of wealth in the last decade? Has it escaped him that wealth is more widely distributed in this favored land, than elsewhere under the sun? Has he read of the enormous deposits in the Saving Banks where the earnings of the laboring classes are placed? Has he looked into the tidy and comfortable homes of the people and compared them with the squalor, the dirt and the poverty that characterize the dwellings of the massess in other lands? Free Trade Folly.

The free traders show a disposition o stand in the way of retaliation, in order to make a point against protection. They will insist that one tariff which they claim virtually prohibits many importations gives other nations the right to retaliate, by singling out certain of our products for exclusion.

This is absurd. In the first place one tariff does not prohibit anything. It allows any arti- supremacy. Of what will this united cle to be brought into the country upon the payment of a certain amount of duty-which is never excessive boon

The glaring falsity of such a pleas as that made by the free traderspis in people be abandoned to the mercy of taking no note of the discrimination

> egitimate basis for complaint Nor would we have have if they cose to ab pendents in North Orolina who are solutely prohibit the importation of all pork and pork products.

Such a sweeping interdiction would have an aspect of fairness, by placing ing up and protection of human rights us in the same category with other nations. But we have the right to be justly indignant when we are singled out from all the other nations and made the target of a special exhibition, leveled directly at us, and not made applicable to any other people. When, too, this is done without warning or explanation; when we have a reciproall the privileges accorded the most favored nation-the matter becomes es pecially provoking.

Therefore, there is no likeness what ever between our protective duties-exacted of all alike, and the edicts of interdiction is leveled directly against us. It is the difference between charging all men a price for admission to a house, and kicking one man out of doors. We are the fellow that is kicked out,-Totedo Blade

Painted Political Garments.

Whenever Democratic politicians discuss questions merely speculative, one would suppose the party of Jefferson and of Jackson to be still alive .-But when it comes to reducing these principles to practice, the democracy of the fathers vanishes into the very thin substance, called air. The democrats of the Jefferson school of politics elieved in a strict construction of th constitution. They would have scorned to raid the United States Treasury for appropriations to widen polecat creek, or deepen dogtail ditch, Now how different! Eve: y democratic congressman seems to regard the national treasury as a huge flesh pot, around which all the states are sitting and the patriot who can run his arm in deepest and digest with unction the hugest morsels of fat upon a cast iron stomach iswell to say the least, estitled to much consideration and a renomination. We believe the chief recommendation for Senator Ransom's renomination and reelection to the U. S. Senate was, that "he had gotten a great deal for the state." Think of this, shades of Calhoun! In the days of Andrew Jackson it reverence the government. If the democratic party has rewa ded a single man in North Carolina because of his loyalty to the Union, we have yet to hear of it, Jefferson believed in the right and duty of universal suffrage; of the people to elect their rulers, but modern sham democracy deprives the people of this great privilege, and turns the selection of the most petty home offici .ls over to the small bosses. Mr. Jefferson also thought that poverty entitled a man to sympathy, and that the mere right to live ought to be guaranteed to the humblest. But lo! modern North Carolina sahm, fatee pretentious democracy taxes a man's head and indicts him fer not having the wherewithal to pay the tax. To hear these humbugs talk of Jefferson one would suppose them to be the heirs at-law of the simon pule princiciples of the party that once acted its professed principles, when all the while they are mere political bastards, masquerading in the painted garments of true democracy. WHITE HOUSE OCCUPANTS. Reminiscences of Administrations of the Past-Social

President Harrison was 68 when he came to Washington to act as president. His wife was sorry when he was nominated, and did not want to come. He died too soon to show what kind of a social president he would have made. Tyler, who succeeded him, seemed to have an alliance with death. He was made governor of Virginia by the death of the governor He came to the senate through the death of a senator, and he was made president by the death of Harrison, Still he did not let death trouble him. His first wife made things lively in the white house while she lasted, and when she died he stretched her corpse out in the east room for the people to see it, and then consigned it to the grave. A short els." time after he slipped off to New York, and was quietly married to Miss Gardner, a Catholic, at the Ascension church on Fifth avenue, and returned to the white house so soon after the death of his first wife that the funeral baked meats might well have served for the marriage breakfast. Before his first wife died, however, Tyler made some changes in white house customs. At first he received on all days of the week. Then he set aside Thursdays and Saturdays as his receiving days. He started the Saturday afternoon concerts on the white house grounds, which have been kept up ever since during the summer, and kept open house in the old Virginia style. On ordinary days Tyler gave notice that visitors would be expected to retire at basted all 10 o'clock, or thirty minutes earlier

Mrs. Polk stopped dancing at the white house receptions, and the country went as wild over this action as they did over that of Mrs. Hayes has she did over that of Mrs. Hayes put a stop to white house wine ing. It is reported of the former that a stranger on meeting her at one of her receptions said sternly, "Mrs. Polk, there is woe prononneed against you in the Bible."

WILMINGTON, N. C. FRIDAY MORNING, JAN. 25, 1884

OUT OF THE DEPTHS. Our Correspondent's Researches and a Remarkable Occurrence He Describes.

ST. ALBANS, Vt., Jan. 10, 1884. Messrs. Editors: The upper portion of Vermont is one of the pleasantest regions in America during the summer and affords ample opportunity for the tourist, providing he choses the proper season, but the present time is not that season. Still there are men and women here who not only endure the climate, but paise it unstintingly, and that, too, in the face of physical hardships the most intense. The writer heard of a striking illustration of this a few days since which is given herewith:

Mr. Joseph Jacques is connected with the Vermont Central railroad in the capacity of master mason. He is well advanced in years with a ruddy complexion and hale appearance, while his general bearing is such as to instantly impress one with his strict honor and integrity. Several years ago he became afflicted with most distressing troubles, which prevented the prosecution of his duties. He was languid, and yet r stless, while at times a dizziness would come over him which seemed almost blinding. His will power was strong, and he determined not to give wry to the mysterious influence which seemed undermining his life. But the pain and anzoying symptoms were stronger than his will, and he kept growing gradually worse. About that time he began to notice a difficulty in drawing on his boots, and it was by the greatest effort that he was able to force his feet into them. In this manner several weeks passed by, until finally one night, while in great agony, he discovered that his feet had, in a short while, swollen to enormous proportions. The balance of the narative can best be described in his own words. He said:

"When my wife discovered the fact that I was so bloated, she sent for the doctor immediately. He made a most careful examination and pronounced me in a very serious condition. Notwithstanding his care, I grew worse, and the swelling of my feet gradually extended upward in my body. The top of my head pained me terribly; indeed, so badly that at at times it seemed almost as if it would burst .-My feet were painfully cold, and even when surrounded with hot flannels and irons felt as if a strong wind were blowing on them. Next my right leg became paralyzed. This gave me no pain, but I was exceedingly annoyed. About this time I began to spit blood most freely, although my lungs were in perfect condition, and I know it did not come from them. My physicians were careful and untiring in their attentions. but unable to relieve my sufferings. My neighbors and friends thought I was dying to and many called to see me, fully twenty-five on a single Sunday that I now recall. At last my agony seemed to culminate in the most in tense, sharp pains I have ever known or heard of. If red hot knives sharpened to the highest degree had been run through my body constantly they could not have hurt me worse. I would spring up in bed, sometimes as much three feet, cry out in my agony and long for death. One night the misery was so intese that I arose and attempted to go into the next room, but was unable to lift my swollen feet above the little threshold that obstructed them. I fell back upon the bed and gasped in my agony, but felt unable even to breathe. It seemed like death.

"Several years ago Rev. Dr. J. E. Bankin, now of Washington, was stationed here as pastor of the Congrega-tional church. We all admired and and respected him, and my wife remembered seeing somewhere that he had spoken in the highest terms of a preparation which had cured some of his intimate friends. We determined to try this remedy, accordingly sent for it, and, to make a long story short, it completely restored my health, brought me back from the grave, and I owe all I have in the way of health and strength to Warner's Safe Cure, better known as Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. I am positive that if I had ta-ken this medicine when I felt the first symptoms above described, I might have avoided all the agony I afterward endured, to say nothing of the narrow escape I had from death."

In order that all possible facts bearing upon the subject might be known I called on Dr. Oscar F. Fassett, who J. was for nineteen years United States Examining Surgeon, and who attended Mr. Jacques during his sickness. He stated that Mr. Jacques had a most pronounced case of Albuminuria or Bright's disease of the kidneys. That an analysis showed the presence of albumen and casts in great abundance and that he was in a condition where few if any ever recover. His recovery was due to Warner's Safe Cure.

Mr. John W. Hobart, General Manger of the Vermont Central railroad, stated that Mr. Jacques was-one of the best and most faithful of his employes, that his sickness had been an exceedingly severe one and the company were not only glad to again have his servi-ces, but grateful to the remedy that had cured so valuable a man.

Mr. James M. Foss. assistant superintendent and master mechanic of the Vermont Central railroad, is also able to confirm this. I do not claim to be a great discoverer, but I do think I have found in the above a most remarkable case and knowing the unusual increase of Bright's disease feel that the public should have the benefit of it. It seems to me a remedy that can accomplish so much in the last stages ought to do even more for the first approach of this deceptive yet terrible trouble. The Mobile Register declares that if the tariff issue is introduced into the politics of the southern states it will divide the white vote, since the whites in those regions will not hold together except on the question of negro ascendency. It is said that the sixty damsels who were recently compelled to fly from the fire in the Milwaukee Female Seminary in their night dresses did not mind it much. Most of them had their garments beautifully edged with real

The retirement of Mr. Carl Schurz, a few weeks ago, from the editorship of one of the leading journals of New York, on the ground that irreconcilable differences of opinion existed between him and his associates with regard to the conflict of the telegraph and railroad men with their employers, has awakened curiosity in no ordinary de gree; and hence when he defines his position upon the question at issue, viz, "Corporations, their Employes and the Public," as he does in the North the Public," as he does in the North day. "No," was the mournful reply, American Review for February, he is "but I did when I got home. My wife sure to command an attentive hearing | gave it to me." To the same number of the Review J. C. Sharp, Principal of the University of St. Andrews, contributes an admirable sketch of the life and works of "Henry Vaughan, Silurist," a poet of the 17th century whose genius exhibited a rare and almost unique combination of gifts. Senator J. J. Ignals writes of "John Brown's Place in history," his purpose being to disprove the several counts in the indictment of the hero of Potawatomic contained in the recent article by the Rev. David N. Utters. The question "Must the Classics Go?" is discussed by Prof. Andrew F. West, of Princeton College, who presents a very forcible argument for the retention of Greek and Latin in the curriculum of our educational system. "Race Increase in the United States," by/Congressman J. Randolph Tucker, makes a very substantial contribution to sociological science. The Rev. M. J. Savage, in pointing out sundry "Defects of the Public School System," advances certain views of the ends to be attained by state education which if accepted, would very materially modify, and indeed revolutionize the existing system. Finally an important question in hygiene, "Rival Systems of Heating," is treated by Dr. A. N. Bell and Prof. W. P. Trowbridge, who point out the advantages and disadvantages, from the standpoints of both economy and of healtn, of the different methods in use for warming houses. Published at 20

The Volume Had Come.

A New Yorker who was up in the hill country a week or so ago shooting rabbits had occasion to call at a country store for some shot.

"Yes, I've got powder," replied the little old man behind the counter. "How much did you want?"

"I'il take a pound?"

"What! a hull pound?"

"Yes, sir." The merchant came from behind his counter, slowly adjusted his steel bowed spectacles, and for a long minute looked the New Yorker over as one might read a circus bill. Finally he "A hull pound, and you are going to

"Well-um-well! Mister, for the last fifteen years I've been contending that the volume of floating currency was not large enough to do the business of the country, and I never expected to live to see this day. Cash down for a hull pound of powder! Wait a minute till I go to the back door and wheop."

A Polite Brakeman.

The politest brakeman in the world is on the Trestle road; the cars stop between stations, and before the passengers are really cognizant of the fact the brakeman enters and says: "Ladies and gentlemen, as you may have noticed we have stopped at an unusual place on the road.
